Excerpt: . . . executive summary be put in place to ensure that progress is made. With such data and tools, military leaders at all levels can be held accountable for their performance in diversity management and rewarded for their efforts. Conclusion Todays military operations are executed in complex, uncertain, and rapidly changing environments. Men and women representative of the U. S. population and with different skills, experiences, and back-grounds are needed to respond to new and emerging threats. To har-ness these differences in ways that increase operational effectiveness, the military must revise and develop policies consistent with the new diversity vision. Diversity needs to work - for the good of the Nation and of the Armed Forces that serve it. Joint operations, imposed by Congress on an unwilling military 25 years ago, have since become a large-scale example of the strength that comes with diversity. These operations do not level or eliminate each Services unique traditions and capabilities: Each Service main-tains its culture,...
