The project is of fundamental importance, and is to be continued under the new Council. The purpose of this cooperation is to hasten the acquisition of definite knowledge regarding the salt requirements of a few representative agricultural plants, and it is hoped thus to accomplish in a small number of years what would usually require many decades. Experimenters are earnestly requested to further this work in every way possible, and it is hoped that at least part of the time of one research worker in each laboratory where this kind of work is carried on may be devoted to this project. If all of the time of one or...
